Ubytování

Accommodation

Finding affordable long-term accommodations in suburban Vancouver and its city-centre can be a challenge due to expensive prices. That is why students choose between homestays and shared renting while studying in Vancouver.

- Homestays - Many Canadian families open their doors to students in need of accommodation. Host families provide meals and a private, furnished room for a student throughout his or her studies.

Homestays are arranged by schools, whereby families and prospective students are matched according to their shared interests.

- Shared Renting - Rent rates in Vancouver may be a little pricey for some. To temper costs, students typically share rented spaces with fellow students.

Suites and apartments for rent usually have a kitchen, a toilet, a bathroom, and a bedroom. They do not always include meals, furniture, or utilities, however.
